The TRIBUNE.

NUMBER XXVII.

AS Public Spirit is the noblest of all the social virtues, whenever there is a remarkable defection from that glorious principle, it is highly reprouchable, because it serves to wound and weaken public confidence, and thereby leaves a People in a great measure at the mercy of Government.

But if it is infamous to abuse public confidence, and to sink from the patriotic into the selfish and servile character, it is no less hurtful and disgraceful to a People to suppose from suspicion or blind credulity, a defection from principle where there may actually be none, because a conduct of such levity and ingratitude must create disgust and resentment in a noble mind and heart, and even deaden desire to do service to those who discover themselves so susceptible of deceit, and so liable to repay the best offices with ill treatment.

Your TRIBUNE, my worthy Countrymen, has professed your good to be his fixed object, and the tenour of his writings he makes the Test of his principles; from which if he ever deviates, your contempt will become his due; nor has he any claims to your attention, but from candour and fair argument. He is no instrument of faction, no creature of power: and whenever he appears such he will become unworthy of your regard. Attend then to his remonstrances against doing injury to yourselves, by pre-judging men and motives till actions shall furnish you with the only true tests of comparative merit.

Unhappily, we live in times which too effectually discover, that the contenders for power and influence are too generally in pursuit of self-interest, at the expence of common good. Such will ever be the case with men who have souls of the sordid cast, of which you have long, from reason and experience, been thoro'ly convinced; and therefore you have, for some time past, fixed on one to confide in of a more elevated spirit, on the surest of grounds for judging of the hearts and dispositions of men; which were, that while in power he never abused it to his own profit, and that he has more than once voluntarily quitted power and profit for poverty in your common service, the service of his country.

Such Tests of his patriotic principles (and they were the strongest that could be given) justly obtained him your fullest confidence, and eager have been your desires to see him placed in a station in which it would be in his power to do his country eminent service; the which bodily infirmities have greatly disqualified him for doing otherwise than by his Counsels. Those desires have become accomplished. You now once again behold him called to the Administration of Government, accompanied by others who had likewise, by their allowed public merits, obtained your entire approbation and attachment. Be steady in your principles, but be consistent in your conduct: never desert a regard for your common interest, nor a strong affection for your country; nor ever (till you have evident reason for so doing from their manifest defection in principle) for your own honor, your own good, suffer yourselves to be ensnared, by artful and designing men, into a distrust of their fidelity who have deservedly obtained your confidence by manifested integrity, and the most eminent public services.

The season is critical, the eyes of all Europe are now attentively fixed on you, and the fortune of your country may be dependent on your conduct. The men whom you have most approved, whom your friends have most respected, and your enemies most feared, the very men who so nobly stood forth so very lately to close the breach that was opening wide between the Colonies and Mother country, and which, if suffered to extend, might, from the apparent dispositions of our natural enemies, have been attended with the most fatal consequences; for which able and good services, with a noble display of genuine policy and the true spirit of Liberty and Patriotism, they received the loudest applause both in Great Britain and America; I say, the men who have thus gloriously distinguished themselves anew in the cause of their country, and who stand in so exalted a light in the eyes of mankind, ought not surely to be suspected, accused, nay, condemned, even before any knowledge can be had of their intensions or measures, or any experience of their conduct on anticipating opinions, which are sought to be infused into your minds by the very men, and their instruments, whom you have most opposed and execrated for their gross selfishness and incapacity. Let me then conjure you, for your own honor, your own interest, and for the peace and welfare of your country, not to relinquish those opinions which you had formed on sure knowledge and experience, but continue your confidence till you find it, by their conduct, indisputably abused: and if that should prove your misfortune, then shall my voice be the loudest to execrate, in your cause, the Betrayers of public confidence and faith, the ensnarers of men of worth and the worst enemies of their country.

But the time, I trust, will never come, in which you will find cause to reproach them for such abuse of your confidence. What have Courts to bestow, that can bribe a man from his integrity, whose strong love of fair fame, and high sense of virtuous honor, inspired him with abhorrence of illicitly gained lucre when presented to his hand, and while in a state but little removed from real indigence? His objects have apparently been, from the great services done by him to his country, the just applause and esteem of his cotemporaries, and the admiration of posterity; the most noble ambition with which a human heart can be inspired, and which, if once truly felt, becomes deserted no more. And after his exaltation to power had been wished by all, and while Statues are erecting to his glory by our fellow-subjects in America, shall we suffer his rivals and enemies, the very men whom we have most despised, hated and opposed, to insinuate into our minds doubts of his integrity, which can only operate to our prejudice, by lessening the weight abroad and influence at home of an Administration, which we owe to him the belief of his having engaged in for the succour, perhaps the salvation of his country? Such attempts to abuse our understanding, would be as worthy of our worst national enemies, as of our most falsely pretending friends, and therefore can only be made on the most treacherous views.

But it is unreasonable to suppose, that men of real worth and knowledge will suffer their minds to be infested by such invidious insinuations, or such groundless slanders and falsehoods, as are industriously propagated by the most contemptible of human beings; since all must remember, when the great Commoner was voluntarily called to the service of his country, and to save it from ruin, there were not found wanting, those who, by rancour and ridicule, sought to prejudice that public against him, which had long been sollicitous to see him exalted to power; but all their efforts proved ineffectual for depriving him of his influence or popularity. So likewise, when he became worried from office, after the most faithful and successful services done to his country therein, and which greatly surpassed all that in succession had ever been experienced by this kingdom, the insidious sons of slander were seen as eagerly active in endeavours to weaken his credit with the public, by every species of falsehood they could invent, or of misrepresentation which they could make, and which unfortunately for their country, had a momentary ill effect; but truth, like the sun when overshadowed by a cloud, soon dispersed all the mists of doubt and obloquy, and shone forth again with redoubled lustre. The same attempts were made on the efforts of last winter, but when by his own sentiments the public mind became informed of the real truth, what applause and admiration were the immediate consequences thereof!

So, may we trust, it will fare with all those who are now the busy revilers and slanderers of him and his friends. They may go on with filling every dirty channel of communication with falsehoods and abuse, while they cause the lie of the day or hour, the whisper of misrepresentations, and the hint of suspicion, to be industriously spread through every quarter of the town and Kingdom. They will all prove but the flimsey cobwebs of deception, which truth and fact will soon effectually brush away. Actions will speak the men, to the confusion of their traducers, as all men of worth believe: and such will admit no other evidence, on the full persuasion that they have the good intentions of those who have, on former occasions, so well manifested their integrity, as to leave no doubt remaining, that they mean in their stations to do real service to their country; or if circumvented in such good endeavours that they then, as heretofore, will again honourably quit them; and therefore to such indubitable proofs of their integrity, we should all candidly appeal.

By the Lord Hyde Packet, Capt. Goddard, arrived at New-York in 5 Weeks and 5 Days from Falmouth, we have the following Advices.

LONDON, Auguſt 7.

Extract from a ſhort Account of the late ſhort Adminiſtration.

THE late Adminiſtration came into employment under the mediation of the Duke of Cumberland, on the 10th day of July, 1765, having laſted juſt one year and twenty days.

In that ſpace of time,

The diſtractions of the Britiſh Empire were compoſed by the repeal of the American ſtamp-act.

But the conſtitutional ſuperiority of Great-Britain was preſerved, by the act for ſecuring the dependence of the Colonies.

Private houſes were relieved from the juriſdiction of the Exciſe, by the repeal of the cyder tax.

The perſonal liberty of the ſubject was confirmed, by the reſolution for condemning the ſeizure of papers.

The trade of America was ſet free from judicious and ruinous impoſitions.---Its revenue was improved, and ſettled upon a rational foundation---Its commerce extended with foreign countries; while all the advantages were ſecured to Great-Britain, by the act for the repealing certain duties, and encouraging, regulating, and ſecuring the trade of this Kingdom, and the Britiſh dominions in America.

Materials were provided and inſured to our manufactures---The African trade preſerved and extended---The principles of the Act of Navigation purſued, and the plan improved---And the trade for bullion rendered free, ſecure, and permanent, by the act for opening certain ports in Dominica and Jamaica.

While that Adminiſtration provided for the liberty and commerce of their country, as the true baſis of its power, they conſulted its intereſts, they aſſerted its honour abroad with temper and firmneſs; by making an advantageous treaty of commerce with Ruſſia; by obtaining a liquidation of the Canada bills, to the ſatisfaction of the proprietors; by reviving and raiſing from its aſhes the negotiation for the Manilla ranſom, which had been extinguiſhed and abandoned by their Predeceſſors.

They treated their Sovereign with decency; with reverence. They diſcountenanced, and it is hoped, forever aboliſhed the dangerous and unconſtitutional practice of removing military officers for their votes in Parliament. They firmly adhered to thoſe friends of liberty, who had run all hazards in its cauſe, and provided for them in preferenee to every other claim.

With the Earl of B— they had no perſonal connection; no correſpondence of councils. They neither courted him, nor perſecuted him. They practiſed no corruption; nor where they ever ſuſpected of it. They ſold no offices. They obtained no reverſions or penſions, either coming in or going out, for themſelves, their families, or their dependants.

St. James's, Auguſt 6.

On Saturday the 26th of July, Mr. Ruſſel, one of his Majeſty's Meſſengers, arrived at the Right Hon. Mr. ſecretary Conway's Office, with the Treaty of Commerce concluded between his Majeſty and the Empreſs of Ruſſia, which was ſigned at Peterſbourgh on the 20th June laſt, Old ſtile.

LONDON, Auguſt 8. & 9.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Hertford is to continue in his poſt of Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

Friday ------ Barre, Eſq; Member for High Wickham, kiſſed his Majeſty's hand on being appointed Joint Vice Treaſurer of Ireland.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Shelburne has appointed Richard Sutton, Michael Peter Morin, and John Chriſtopher Roberts, Eſquires, to be the Under-ſecretaries of his Lordſhip's office for the Southern department.

The Lord Chancellor has appointed Henry Wilmott, Eſq; to be his Principal Secretary, which place he enjoyed under the Earl of Northington.

His Lordſhip has alſo appointed Morris Robinſon, Eſq; to be Secretary of the Preſentations, inſtead of Edward Woodcock, Eſq; Thomas Nuthall, Eſq; to be Secretary of Bankrupts, inſtead of Philip Carteret Webb, Eſq; Auguſtine Greenland, Eſq; to be Secretary of Lunaticks, in the room of Mr. Joſeph Cockes: And Mr. John Hill, to be his Lordſhip's purſe bearer.

We hear that the Right Hon. Lord Percival, eldeſt ſon to the Earl of Egmont, will be made a Commiſſioner of Trade.

Yeſterday Lord Viſc. Ligonier reſigned his command of Colonel of the firſt regiment of footguards, which is given to the Marquis of Granby.

Auguſt 9. Yeſterday General Burton and his lady, who lately arrived from America, were introduced to their Majeſties at St. James's, and were graciouſly received.

On Wedneſday Daniel Moore, Eſq; was appointed Receiver-General for South-Carolina.

It is aſſured, that the new treaty of commerce concluded with the Court of Peterſburgh, is very advantageous for taking off a large ſhare of Britiſh manufactures, which by means of the Ruſſian caravans, lately eſtabliſhed at Peterſburgh and Moſcow, will be tranſported over land to the remoteſt parts of the empire.

We hear from Weymouth, that the four Indian chiefs and three women, who landed there a few days ago, waited on Mr. Pitt's family, who are now there, and one of them made a ſpeech to his eldeſt ſon; after which, they were carried, in one of Mr. Pitt's coaches, to the new aſſembly room where the ball was opened by the duke of Kingſton. The Indians appeared highly delighted with the dances, and afterwards danced according to their manner with the war whoop; and one of 'em afterwards danced a hornpipe in the Engliſh manner.

Orders are given for the Indian chiefs and women, juſt arrived in town from America, to be ſupported at the government's expence, during their ſtay here.

On Wedneſday laſt ſix principal Merchants, viz. Meſſrs. Trecothick, Long, Hanbury, Morſe, Stewart, and Vaughan, deputed from the Merchants of London, trading to the Weſt-Indies and North-America, waited on the Marquis of Rockingham with an Addreſs, in which they remark, that, his Lordſhip being no longer in a public ſtation, they are exempt from even the ſuſpicion of flattery;---and expreſſing their ſenſe of the eſſential benefits received, during a period, ſhort indeed, but truly remarkable for the nobleſt exertions in favour of the civil and commercial intereſts of theſe kingdoms; happily diſpelling the threatening clouds, and opening a ſyſtem of commerce, liberal and uſeful beyond all former example.

Bridgetown (in Barbados) Auguſt 30.

By Thomas Workman, Eſq; who arrived here the 26th Inſt. in a Flag of Truce from Martinico, we have the following melancholly Account of a moſt dreadful Hurricane that happened there the 13th and 14th Inſt. Mr. Workman arrived at Fort Royal on the 16th in the Evening, and was informed, that on the 13th Inſt. a violent Gale of Wind from W. N. W. came on, which increaſed till about Eleven o'Clock, that Night; from that Time till Morning it blew a Hurricane, that all the Veſſels at St. Pierres, and many others at Fort Royal, were driven on Shore, and utterly loſt, among which were 25 from different Ports in North-America: That by the Returns from the ſeveral Pariſhes, many Houſes, and the chief Parts of their Sugar Works, had been blown down; that to the Number of 800 Souls, White and Black, had periſhed; and that their Canes and Ground Proviſions were entirely deſtroyed. In Conſequence of which, an Ordonance was publiſhed, giving Liberty to Engliſh Veſſels to import Bread and Flour, paying a Duty of only one per Cent. to the French King, and other Proviſions, agreeable to their former Ordonances.

NEW-YORK, September 29.

We hear from Dutcheſs County, that the Day after Mr. Pendergaſt received the Reprieve, reſpiting his Execution till his Majeſty's Pleaſure ſhould be known, a Number of Men, without the leaſt Tumult, Noiſe or previous Notice, ſuddenly aſſembled at the Goal where he is confined, and offered to releaſe and convey him to a Place of Safety: But he told them, that having received a Reprieve, he choſe to remain where he was, and wait the Reſult. Beſides he told them, if he ſhould eſcape without any other Inconveniences, it would certainly be attended with the Loſs of his Property in this Government, which would reduce his Family to Poverty and Want. Upon this Anſwer, which he perſiſted in, the Company withdrew as ſuddenly and quietly as they met, without doing the leaſt Miſchief of any Kind.

The Maſt or Flag Staff on the Common, which was lately cut down, and occaſion'd a good deal of Diſturbance in this City, was on Tueſday Night cut down again, and Yeſterday another was, by the Inhabitants erected in its Place.

The Authors of this Inſult are not yet certainly known, but ſome particular Perſons are ſuſpected.

In the Packet came Paſſenger, Capt. Archibald Kennedy, who we underſtand is honorably reſtored to the Command of his Majeſty's Ship Coventry, now on this Station. We hear Captain Cornel, the late Commander, intends to return to England in the Packet.

HARTFORD, September 22.

There are the greateſt Number of Bears come down among the Towns, that ever was known; they deſtroy great Quantities of Indian Corn, and make great Havock among the Sheep and Swine.

Laſt Tueſday Morning, a large He Bear, was diſcovered in an Incloſure, oppoſite the Treaſurer's, and being purſued, he took to the Main-Street, which he kept till he got to the Lane that turns Eaſtward, by the South Meeting (notwithſtanding his being pelted from every Part of the Street, with Stones, Clubs, &c.) and was followed into the South Meadow, where he was ſhot. The Number of People that were out of Doors, to ſee ſo uncommon an Animal in the Town, made it dangerous to fire at him in the Street. In the Evening he was roaſted whole, and a large Company ſup'd on him.

PORTSMOUTH, October 3.

Laſt Monday as a Schooner of about 18 Tons was going into Newbury-Port, having five Hands on Board, three Men and two Boys, ſhe ſtruck on the Bar and overſet, by which Accident the three Men were drowned, the Boys ſoon after were taken up: they belong'd to Almſbury.

Saturday laſt the Scarboro' Maſt Ship, Capt. Tate arrived here in 6 Weeks and 4 Days from Plymouth, in England----It is remarkable, that this Ship has performed three Voyages from England to theſe Parts in Ten Months.

BOSTON, October 6.

Dennis Deberr, Eſq; writes that the Addreſs to his Majeſty by the Houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province on Occaſion of the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, has been preſented by his Grace the Duke of Richmond, and moſt graciouſly received; and that it arrived the firſt of any of the Addreſſes upon that happy Event. Alſo that the Votes of Thanks to the ſeveral illuſtrious Members of both Houſes of Parliament, who moſt eminently diſtinguiſhed themſelves as the Patrons of our Liberty, were very kindly received.

A Number of Veſſels are arrived from their Whaling Voyages, which in general has not been very ſucceſsful.---One of them viz. Captain Clerk on Thurſday Morning the 25th ult. diſcovering a Spermaceti Whale, near George's Banks, man'd his Boat, and gave Chace to her, and ſhe coming up with her Jaws againſt the Bow of the Boat ſtruck it with ſuch Violence that it threw a Son of the Captain's (who was forward ready with his Lance) a conſiderable Height from the Boat, and when he fell the Whale turned with her devouring Jaws opened, and caught him: he was heard to ſcream when ſhe cloſed her Jaws, and part of his Body was ſeen out of the Mouth, when ſhe turned, and went off.

We hear from Weymouth, that the Week before laſt two Brothers belonging to that Place having ſome Diſpute, the younger being much provok'd by the elder, ſtruck him a Blow acroſs his Face with his Hand open, which knock'd his Head backwards againſt the Jamb of a Chimney, and he died in two Days after.

We hear from the Grenades, that a large Ship commanded by Captain McCarthy, belonging to this Place, in heaving down to clean went to Pieces.

Yeſterday Captain Coppinger arrived here from Martinico, and informs that in the late Hurricane there, his Veſſel, and Capt. Engliſh alſo of this Port, were both loſt.

Yeſterday died here Mr. Samuel Holbrooke, formerly Deputy-Secretary of this Province.

Laſt Night departed this Life, after a ſhort Illneſs, in the 71ſt Year of his Age, FRANCIS WELLS, of this Town, Diſtiller, Eſq; a Gentleman well reſpected.-----His Offspring were Twenty-ſeven. We hear his Funeral is to be attended on Wedneſday next.

Public Notice is hereby given,

Sermons on Practical Subjects. By Robert Walker, one of the Miniſters of the High Church of Edinburgh. The Sermons of this Author, (who has long been admired as the beſt Preacher among the Clergy in North Britain) are remarkable for the moſt engaging Simplicity and Elegance of the Expreſſion, which is at the ſame Time conciſe, nervous, pathetic & correct.

An Appeal to common Senſe in Behalf of Religion. By the Rev. Dr. James Oſwald—The Zeal and Elequence of this Friend of Religion and Common Senſe, will give the finiſhing Blow to the Reveries of both the ancient and modern Philoſophers and Metaphyſicians. The Writings of the Friends of Religion and their Adverſaries, viz Berkeley, Locke, Dr. Clerk, Smith Author of the Theory of Moral Sentiments, Profeſſor Reid, Deſcartes, Lord Kames, Hume, Lord Bolingbroke, Lord Shafteſbury, Mandeville, & Hutcheſon are very juſtly characteriz'd in this excellent Performance.

A Sermon and Letters on ſeveral Points of Importance, by the ſame Author.

Diſſertations on Subjects relating to the Genius and the Evidences of Chriſtianity. By Profeſſor Gerard. Of this Author, who hath now entered the Liſts in Support of Chriſtianity, nothing more need be ſaid, than that he hath lately, in his Eſſay on Taſte, illuſtrated a Subject on which the greateſt modern Writers had employed their Pens, viz Voltaire, D'Alembert and Monteſquiew.

ORTON's Memoirs of the Life, Character and Writings of the late Rev. Dr PHILIP DODDRIDGE, of Northampton Printed on a fine Paper, and neatly bound, Price 6 s. Every ſerious Chriſtian muſt receive the greateſt Advantage and the moſt ſub Ime Pleaſure from the Peruſal of the Life of the learned and pious Dr. Doddridge, whoſe Integrity, Humility, affectionate Temper, lively and animated Devotion rendered him one of the moſt ſhining Ornaments of the Church of Chriſt. Mr. Orton who undertook this Work at the earneſt Perſuaſion of the Doctor's Friends and the Admirers of his Writings, was enabled to do it not only from a long and intimate Acquaintance but alſo from being in Poſſeſſion of all the Doctor's Papers, Diary &c and he has executed it in ſuch a Manner as to do Honor to himſelf, and Juſtice to the Character and Worth of that truly great Man.

SUPPLEMENT to the Boston-Gazette, &c. of October 6, 1766.

From the New-York Mercury.

To the PRINTERS, &c.

AS the people in America have been misinformed of the conduct of JOHN HUSKE, Esq; member of parliament for Malden, with regard to the late Stamp-act, I beg you'll insert the following address to that Gentleman, by which the public will be convinced how far he acted a contrary part, and how assiduous he has been in the cause of America; and that on the very day his effigy was burnt at Boston, he presented the ministry a plan of 12 free ports in America; six whereof were, with the greatest difficulty, obtain'd last session, and if by experience, it appears that these do not prove instrumental to the introduction of foreign European manufactures, it is highly probable, that the remainder of these contained in his plan will be granted next session, viz. Pensacola, St. Augustine, New York, Piscataqua, Halifax, and Basseterre, in the Island of Grenades: We are besides told, that if the merchants of America will unite for the effectual prevention of foreign produce or manufactures getting clandestinely into his Majesty's colonies, they may expect the whole of America will be put upon the same footing as the free ports of Dominica and Jamaica: And that they have this in their power has been fully demonstrated by the effects of the Union, to prevent any Goods from Great-Britain coming into the Colonies 'till the Stamp-Act was repealed. There is no other Objection in England, to let us have Wine, Fruit, and Olive Oil directly from Spain, Portugal, and Italy, and Salt to the Colonies South of Pensylvania, than the Fear of our introducing at the same Time other Articles, prejudicial to the Trade and Manufactures of Great Britain: That Mr. Huske would have obtained this Liberty last Sessions, if he could have removed the mentioned Objection to the Satisfaction of the Ministry and of Parliament; hence it is presumeable, all the Merchants of America will see that they are called upon by every Consideration of Duty, Gratitude, and Interest, to unite directly, in proper Measures, to put a Stop to all clandestine Trade that is injurious to the Interest of the Mother Country.

From the foregoing Facts, we may see the Necessity of being cautious in crediting Reports to the Prejudice of Gentlemen so remote from us; for to Mr. Huske's unwearied Attention, we are, undoubtedly, in a great Measure, indebted, for the Reconciliation so happily effected between Great-Britain and her Colonies, in which such noble Provisions have been made for the Extention of the Trade of the one, and the Abilities of the other, to pay for the Manufactures required from Home.

It is to be hoped Mr. Huske's countrymen will now lament their credulity, being imposed upon relative to that Gentleman, & exert themselves in obliterating their attempts to disgrace one of their best friends in such a public manner, as justice, equity, and gratitude demand of them.

The Address of the Merchants of Liverpool to John Huske, Esq; Member of Parliament. ‖

WE have received, with infinite pleasure, Mr. Haliday's [one of the deputies from Liverpool to elicit the repeal of the Stamp-Act, &c.] information, how much this kingdom, and her colonies, are indebted to you, for your strenuous and distinguish'd endeavors to obtain a repeal of the Stamp-act? the enforcement of which wou'd, at best, have for a long time, subverted our commerce with America, and have endangered not only the ruin of her, but of our own manufactures, and of the nation, while the happy and salutary repeal, we doubt not, will be received with joy, gratitude and thankfulness by the Americans, and our languishing, and almost lost commerce, be revived with new spirit and vigor, to the advantage of both countries.

We are so deeply interested upon this particular occasion, that we presume to hope you will pardon our freedom in thus expressing our sense of the noble part you have acted, and accept the sincerest and most respectful thanks of, Sir,

Your most obliged, & very humble Servants.

[Signed by 161 Merchants.]

The Answer of John Huske, Esq; to the above Address. Westminster, March 1766.

Gentlemen,

I AM extremely sensible of the great honor you have conferred on me, in your kind approbation of my conduct in parliament, relative to the repeal of the American Stamp-Act; and I am perswaded, a representation of it more favorable than it merits, has induced you to bestow on me so obliging a testimony of your esteem. The duty I owed to my native country, and the knowledge I had of the local circumstances of it, demanded of me my utmost activity, in opposing the enacting of that law, when first proposed, & made me flatter myself, that my remonstrances against it, both in public and private, might not have been ineffectual: But the measure being resolved on, predictions, tho' of an alarming nature, were then treated with contempt, which we have lived to see in less than a year verified, under a diminution, I fear, of the dignity and authority of this country.

Actuated by the same motives, animated by the distresses of America, & the impending ruin of the commerce and manufactures of this country, I have employed my best efforts in contributing to its repeal; and I have the pleasure to think, that the inexpediency of the act, the inequality of the tax, and the impracticability of the measure, were the true and only reasons which engaged so great a majority to remove that cause of discontent, the source from which nothing but mutual misery could flow to this kingdom & her colonies.

In the accomplishing this very desirable work, let me assure the constituents of the town of Liverpool, that much is to be attributed to the assiduity & activity of their most amiable and worthy representative, Sir William Meredith: And I do most sincerely congratulate them on a choice that reflects such honor on their discernment. Conscious of the little weight which my situation gives me, & of the little attention which my abilities may entitle me to, I have hitherto contented myself with the pleasing reflection of having done my duty: But, re-animated now by your generous approbation, I shall hereafter exert my best endeavors in promoting the reciprocal interest of this kingdom and her colonies. And by an unwearied application to the extention of the trade and manufactures of this country, secure to myself the continuance of your esteem, held to be inviolable by, Gentlemen,

Your most obedient, most obliged, and very humble Servant, J. HUSKE.

To the Merchants of Liverpool.
